HAY FEVER

LOVE AND FLOWERS.

The Advice a Discerning Woman Gave Unto Her Daughter.

My daughter, wouldst thou know a man's secret? Go to the florist, then, O simple one, for in him every man reposeth his confidence.

Yea, by the flowers which he sendeth a woman shall ye judge the quality of a man's love, likewise the quantity and exact stage.

As violets pass unto roses, and roses unto cheap carnations, and carnations unto naught, so passeth his grand passion from the first throes into matrimony.

Lo, at the beginning of a love affair mark with what care a man selecteth his flowers in person, that not a wilted violet shall offend thine eyes!

Yet as time passeth he telephoneth his orders and leaveth it all to the clerk. And there cometh a day when he murmureth wearily, "I say, old chap, make that a standing order, will you?"

Then the florist heaveth a sigh, for he knoweth that the end is at hand. Yea, this is the mark of an engaged man who doeth his duty. So after the wedding bouquets all orders shall cease together, and until he seeketh flowers for his wife's grave that man shall not again enter a florist's shop.

For stale carnations, bought upon the street corner and carried home in a paper bag, are a fit offering for any wife. Yet a funeral rejoiceth the florist's heart and maketh him to smile, for he knoweth that a widower's next order shall be worthy of a new cause and the game shall begin all over again.

Verily, verily, my daughter, I charge thee, account no man in love until he hath gone forth into the gardens and the fields and plucked thee a few dinky pansies or stray weeds with his own hands.

For when a man sendeth thee violets it may mean only sentiment, and when he sendeth thee orchids it may be only a bluff, but when he doeth real work for any woman it meaneth business. Selah!—London Tit-Bits.

HAD LUCK ON THE WAY.

The English Thief That Dropped In to See His Lawyer.

Here is a story of a genuine instance of the kind of business which fell to the lot of a once notorious London "thieves' counsel." One day a thick-set man, with a cropped poll of unmistakably Newgate cut, slunk into this counsel's room, when the following dialogue took place:

"Morning, sir," said the man, touching his forelock.

"Morning," said the counsel. "What do you want?"

"Well, sir, I'm sorry to say, sir, our little Ben, sir, has 'ad a misfortin. Fust offense, sir, only a wipe."

"Well, well!" interrupted the counsel. "Get on"—

"So, sir, we thought as you'd 'ad all the family business we'd like you to defend him, sir."

"All right," said the counsel; "see my clerk"—

"Yes, sir," continued the thief, "but I thought I'd like to make sure you'd attend yourself, sir. We're anxious cos it's little Ben, our youngest kid."

"Oh, that will be all right! Give Simmons the fee."

"Well, sir," continued the man, shifting about uncomfortably, "I was going to arst you, sir, to take a little less. You see, sir"—wheedlingly—"it's little Ben—his first misfortin"—

"No, no!" said the counsel impatiently. "Clear out!"

"But, sir, you've had all our business. Well, sir, if you won't you won't, so I'll pay you now, sir." And as he doled out the guineas, "I may as well tell you, sir, you wouldn't 'a' got the counters if I hadn't had a little bit of luck on the way."—From "The Recollections of a K. C.," by Thomas Edward Crispe.

Funny For Her.

A New England lad was intently watching his aunt in the process of making pies and cake. He seemed very much inclined to start a conversation, an inclination, however, which the aunt in no way encouraged. She continued in silence to assemble the ingredients of a mammoth cake.

"Tell me something funny, auntie," finally ventured the boy.

"Don't bother me, Tommy," said the aunt. "How can I when I am making cake?"

"Oh, you might say, 'Tommy, have a piece of the pie I've just made.' That would be funny for you."—Exchange.

Waited Twenty Years For a Solution.

A bit of pure and harmless mischief at recitation at Yale was the device of a member of the class of '72, who introduced at recitation a turtle covered by a newspaper pasted on the shell. The tutor had too much pride to come down from his perch and solve the mystery of the newspaper movement, but twenty years after, meeting a member of the class, his first and abrupt question was, "Mr. W., what made that paper move?"

A Relief.

"Johnny," said the boy's mother, "I hope you have been a nice, quiet boy at school this afternoon."

"That's what I was," answered Johnny. "I went to sleep right after dinner, and the teacher said she'd whip any boy in the room who waked me up."—Boston Post.

The Change.

"You didn't use to object to your husband playing poker."

"No, but that was before I learned to play bridge. It is a lovely game, but I cannot afford to play it unless he stops playing poker."—Houston Post.

The White Spruce

It Brought Barbara and the Young Forester Together.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Barbara Owen parted the flaps of the tent and drank in with delighted eyes the scene before her. The little camp perched almost on the edge of the precipice commanded a magnificent view of the snow topped Cascade range blushing under the first rays of the rising sun.

Barbara went to another tent and called her father. He replied by a yawn, followed by a racking cough. Then she hastened to a third tent and prepared breakfast.

Presently James Owen came forth.

"Hungry as a bear, Bab," he said. "The very smell of that coffee makes me feel ten years younger!"

"I wish the taste of it would make you feel ten times better," said Barbara as she placed the meal on the table.

Barbara chatted brightly during the meal and when it was over completed her household tasks, and, leaving her father swinging in a hammock among the trees with a book between his thin fingers, she disappeared in the forest.

The path she trod was faintly defined by disturbed brown needles, and it followed a course marked by high branched trees, winding in and out, skirting a thicket of dwarfed spruce or leading over a roughly bridged gully to a broad wagon trail.

Before she reached the wagon trail Barbara turned abruptly to the left. Here a giant spruce lifted a naked white shaft high above the surrounding trees of the forest.

Crowding about the spruce was a thicket of young hemlock, ragged and starved for want of light and air. There were an opening in the thicket and a low mound covered with brown needles. Dry eyed and tearless, Barbara sat down in the dimness and tried to face a future that was ominously near—a future when her father should be laid beside her mother in another grave under the tall spruce.

A branch crackled under a firm tread and then another. A man's low whistle came nearer to Barbara's retreat, and presently the man himself came into view among the distant tree trunks. Clad in brown khaki, like herself, with leather puttees, blue flannel shirt open at a strong brown throat and a canvas hat tossed back on a rumpled head, Barbara recognized the young man as one of the foresters patrolling the government's forest reserve wherein their camp was pitched. She had met these men occasionally along the wagon trail, and her father had fallen into conversation with one of the sturdy, bronzed woodsmen and afterward had spoken enthusiastically of the splendid work in which they were engaged.

Barbara watched him with interest, confident that he would not penetrate into the thicket.

When he came to the spruce he stopped suddenly, leaned back and squinted his eyes at the white shaft above his head. He knelt down and examined the young hemlocks and once more drew out his notebook. Barbara, silent and brown, blending with the background of brown trunks, was unobserved until the forester drew his hatchet and cut a deep incision in the spruce tree. The girl was on her feet in an instant.

"Stop!" she cried. "Don't do that!"

The man started and peered as if some brown wood fairy had arisen before his bewildered eyes. Barbara laughed shakily.

"It sounds like a school oration, Woodman, spare that tree;' but, you see, my mother is buried here—and—and—the tree marks her grave."

The man had removed his hat and looked at her with respectful attention. Barbara noted that he was young, perhaps thirty, with a crop of thick, sunburned hair and a handsome, well tanned face lighted by keen dark eyes.

"I am very sorry." He hesitated. "I would not do anything to pain you; but, you see, it is my duty to take care of the forest. For the safety of the other and younger trees this dead spruce should come down."

Barbara's eyes filled with tears as she bowed her head against the white trunk of the spruce. "We thought it would be quite undisturbed here in the forest," she sobbed. "There are only three of us—mother here—she died suddenly; father, back at the camp, where he is trying to regain his health in the open, and I. I dare not tell father about the tree. He loves to come here when he is strong enough. The trees sing overhead"—

The forester stepped forward and placed a finger on her sleeve. "Please do not cry," he said awkwardly. "Will you trust me to respect this little spot in the forest and yet do my duty to my employer?"

Barbara looked at his steady eyes and the friendly smile on his clean cut mouth. "Yes," she said slowly; "I will trust you."

"Will you give me your mother's name and the date of her birth and death?" he asked, pulling his notebook out.

Puzzled and a little curious, Barbara gave him the desired information and, with a word of thanks, turned away.

"One week from today you may come again," said the forester gravely.

"Thank you," said Barbara once more, and then she stepped lightly into the trail and was gone.

It was a long week for Barbara Owen. Her father's health improved for the time, and he was anxious to walk in the forest and visit his wife's grave. Barbara invented a dozen excuses to keep him away from the white spruce.

Seven mornings she saw the reflection of the rising sun on the western mountain snows.

On the seventh day she took her father, and together they walked over the narrow trail to where the white spruce had towered. James Owen uttered an astonished cry as he stopped before his wife's grave. Barbara clung to his arm, overcome by a strange emotion. She was glad that the forester was not there to witness it.

The stump of the white spruce arose like a five foot shaft of marble; the bark had been planed off until the wood showed white as satin and as smooth; the top was rounded, and on the flattened side of the stump a hot iron had burned a brief epitaph above Mrs. Owen's resting place. The young hemlocks had been thinned out until they formed a green semicircle about the white shaft.

"Who has done this?" asked Owen huskily.

Barbara told him in a few words of her meeting with the young forester, and after awhile the two walked over to the wagon trail in the direction of the metallic ax blows.

He saw them coming and came to meet them. "I am glad you liked it," he said simply in response to Mr. Owen's warm thanks. "It was better that we should remove the tree in a shipshape manner than permit it to fall of its own accord."

"But the work you did on the stump, young man—it was more than kind of you; we are deeply grateful."

"I had a mother once myself," he replied soberly.

"Come over to the camp and see us, Mr."— said Owen suggestively.

"My name's Charter — Benjamin Charter," said the forester quickly. "You are very kind; I shall be glad to come."

After that day James Owen improved rapidly. There would never be hope of his complete recovery, but a return to even moderate health was an encouragement to his only child. They walked through the woods to the little hemlock circle and felt that here was a spot they might call their own forever.

Their walks often included a search for the foresters engaged in their interesting work of conserving the native trees and guarding against encroaching lumbermen or wandering flocks of sheep or devastating herds of cattle.

Benjamin Charter came to the camp and proved an entertaining companion for father and daughter. He played cards with Mr. Owen or read to the invalid the week old newspapers that came their way. He brought his violin, and Barbara drank in the wonderful melodies woven by the brown fingers and the flashing bow.

The snow caps on the mountains became a little smaller as the season advanced; the dry air was warmer and seemed to give new life to the sick man. Barbara's eyes had a new light in them, and Benjamin Charter's fingers trembled when he played the violin.

Then one day Barbara and her father walked in the forest. They had gone along the wagon trail and were drawing near the working foresters. There was a sound of blows on wood, a silence and then a crashing tearing sound close at hand. Somebody shouted wildly and pushed Barbara and her father out of harm's way, somebody who was too late himself to spring from under the falling tree and so was caught beneath the weight of heavy green branches.

A tree had fallen in an unexpected direction, and Benjamin Charter's quickness had probably saved Mr. Owen and his daughter from injury, if not death. When the tree was removed by the score of laborers that sprang into view Charter was quite unconscious.

He was carried into the camp on the precipice, and one of the men rode madly away to the distant settlement for a doctor. In the meantime Barbara and her father did what they could. The forester opened his eyes upon their anxious faces.

"I am glad you are safe," he said feebly.

"You saved my worthless life and Barbara's precious one," said Owen brokenly. "I wish I could reward you, Charter. You have been a friend indeed to me."

"I wish you would give me Barbara," said Charter, with more strength. "I haven't got very much, but I can take care of her and make her comfortable."

"What do you say, Bab?" asked her father.

Barbara's face, bent above the injured man's, was sufficient answer.

"You needn't wait till I'm gone to be happy," suggested Mr. Owen after the doctor had come and pronounced Charter's injuries to be slight—more painful than dangerous. "You can get married as soon as you are well enough to hobble around and find a minister."

"Thank you, sir," said Charter. His arm was about Barbara as she knelt beside his cot.

"I suppose you know who you're marrying," resumed Owen, with a twinkle in his eyes.

"Barbara Owen, the sweetest girl in the world," returned Charter promptly.

Owen laughed softly. "Barbara Owen, daughter of James Herkimer Owen, the copper king," he said dryly.

"I can't leave the forest," said the forester when he had recovered from his surprise.

"And I don't want to leave it," said Barbara happily.

A COMEDIAN'S TRICK.

Ruse by Which He Escaped Arrest and Had His Debts Paid.

Many amusing stories are told of Joe Haines, a comedian of the time of Charles II., sometimes called "Count" Haines. It is said that he was arrested one morning by two bailiffs for a debt of £20, when he saw a bishop to whom he was related passing along in his coach. With ready resource he immediately saw a loophole for escape, and, turning to the men, he said, "Let me speak to his lordship, to whom I am well known, and he will pay the debt and your charges into the bargain."

The bailiffs thought they might venture this, as they were within two or three yards of the coach, and acceded to the request. Joe boldly advanced and took off his hat to the bishop. His lordship ordered the coach to stop, when Joe whispered to the divine that the two men were suffering from such scruples of conscience that he feared they would hang themselves, suggesting that his lordship should invite them to his house and promise to satisfy them. The bishop agreed, and, calling to the bailiffs, he said, "You two men come to me tomorrow morning, and I will satisfy you!"

The men bowed and went away pleased, and early the next day waited on his lordship, who, when they were ushered in, said, "Well, my men, what are these scruples of conscience?"

"Scruples?" replied one of them. "We have no scruples! We are bailiffs, my lord, who yesterday arrested your cousin, Joe Haines, for a debt of £20, and your lordship kindly promised to satisfy us."

The trick was strange, but the result was stranger, for his lordship, either appreciating its cleverness or considering himself bound by the promise he had unintentionally given, there and then settled with the men in full.

A CHINESE SOLOMON.

His Decision In a Case of a Woman With Two Husbands.

There was a Chinese judge named Wang, who was as wise as Solomon. Before Wang two men and a woman appeared. The older man was the woman's first husband. He had gone to the wars and been reported dead. Now he returned alive to claim his wife. But she meanwhile had married the younger man, who refused to give her up; hence all three came before Wang that he might decide this truly difficult case.

"Yang Ki," said the judge to the woman, "which of these two men made the better husband?"

"Both were perfect husbands, my lord judge," Yang Ki modestly replied.

So the judge told the men that he would keep the woman by him for a week, examining her thoroughly, and a week hence he would decide the case. Well, the week passed, and the two husbands came once more before the judge. He shook his head gravely and said to them:

"The woman, Yang Ki, has died. There is no case. Let her original husband take the body away from my house and pay for the burial."

"Ho, not I!" said the original husband. And, so saying, he darted from the court and was soon lost to view.

"You, then," said the judge to the other man, "must stand these burial expenses."

"Yes," the man answered, "that is just, and I will give this woman, who was good and kind, the finest burial my purse will allow."

The judge clapped his hands. Yang Ki, blushing and smiling, entered the courtroom in a rich dress of gold brocade.

"Take her," said the wise judge, "for you and not the other merit her love and service."

How the Rash Comes.

In measles a rash appears on the fourth day of the fever. It is first seen on the forehead, face and neck, afterward over the whole body. It consists of raised red spots. In scarlet fever the rash appears on the second day of the fever, commencing on the upper part of the chest and neck, whence it spreads over the body. In smallpox an eruption is seen on the third or fourth day on the face, neck and wrists. In chicken pox the eruption is made of small blebs. In typhoid fever the rash rarely shows itself before the seventh day of the fever. The spots are rose colored, and they disappear on pressure.

Diplomatic Politeness.

There are two kinds of politeness, politeness to yourself and politeness to others.

When you come home late at night, for example, even if you are very tired, always remove you hat and coat before getting into bed. It is little attentions like this that constitute you a gentleman. At the same time, do not disturb your wife if you can possibly avoid it. It is the height of rudeness to awaken a sleeping lady.—Thomas L. Masson in Lippincott's.

Confidence.

Mr. Golding—So you want to marry my daughter. Do you think that you can support her in the style to which she has been accustomed? Jack Winsome—No, sir, but I can support her in a good deal better style than you lived in the first five years after you were married.—Somerville Journal.

An Easier Dose.

Johnny—The medicine ain't so nasty as it useter be, mommer. I'm gettin' used to it. Mommer—Do you take a whole spoonful every hour? Johnny—No'm; I couldn't find a spoon, so I'm usin' a fork.—Cleveland Leader.

Congressman McKinlay And the Insurgents.

The Examiner has a political writer who argues from a Democratic standpoint that Duncan McKinlay is likely to have a hard fight on his hands if he tries to go back to Congress again, provided Assemblyman Preston of Mendocino is the Democratic nominee. The writer also remarks the latter has the money to make the campaign and will not only have the united backing of the Democracy but the support of a large continent of "Republlcans," who are not satisfied with their present representative. The Examiner scribe is wrong. No good Republicans are dissatisfied with Congressman McKinlay as their representative in the Congress. True he is not in touch with the insurgents, who failing to rule the Republican party now seek to destroy it, but for all that he is stronger today with Republican voters in this district than ever before in his life. Therefore we assert that he will be chosen the Republican nominee at the primaries in August, and the only chance Preston, or any Democrat for that matter, has of succeeding Duncan McKinlay is for that motley crew of political pirates ycleped the Lincoln-Roosevelt League bolting the ticket in November.

In that event a Democrat may represent this district in the next Congress. But we doubt it, as Duncan McKinlay stands well with the citizens of his district, notwithstanding the howl that has gone forth from the camp of the sore-headed insurgents.

An Illegal Fisherman Who Was on to His Job.

An item is going the rounds of the county press to the effect that Deputy Game Commissioner Stevenson stepped up to an angler on the banks of Austin Creek on Sunday and asked to be permitted to inspect the latter's fish basket.

"Where is your authority?" queried the fisherman.

"I am a deputy state game commissioner and here is my badge," replied Stevenson at the same moment turning back his coat and displaying his star.

The angler grabbed his basket and consigned it to a deep hole in the creek.

"Now said he, turning upon Stevensen," where is your evidence?"

The deputy tried to fish up that fish basket, but at latest reports he had failed to do so. He did not get the angler's name, either.

Sebastopol Votes Against Going Dry.

At the election held in Sebastopol last Monday the proposition submitted to the voters as to whether or not the town would go dry, resulted in a victory for those opposed to prohibition. The vote stood 144 to 118 against. It is understood, however, that the license will be raised in the saloons in that town.

Weise Wins.

The suit of Ritzman vs. Weise was decided by Judge Denny last Tuesday and judgment was given in favor of Weise. The judgment was given by consent by both parties to the suit.

Ritzman some time ago purchased forty acres of land from Mr. and Mrs. Weise for $1400. He was to pay on the installment plan, and when he had paid the sum of $652 he defaulted and demanded the return of his money and the rescinding of his contract to purchase. Mr. and Mrs. Weise could have recovered their land and taken the amounts of the payments, but they chose to give Ritzman an opportunity to save himself and simply went into court to protect themselves in the suit.

In the judgment rendered the Weises consented to give Ritzman ninety days additional time in which to dispose of the property or to do as he chose with it. When he has disposed of it he is to pay the defendant the difference between the amount previously paid and the purchase price of the property.

STOMACH LIVER LUNGS

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommended "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.

GIVEN AWAY.—Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, new revised Edition, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Lawson of the Lawson-Rinner Optical Co. is securing quite a clientele in and about Sonoma, having already supplied satisfactory glasses for a number of our townsfolks. They not only do good work but are a Sonoma County enterprise sharing in common with other residents the expense incidental to county affairs.

Dies of Consumption After Long Illness.

William V. Chase, after an illness of many mouths, passed away last Saturday. The deceased was a native of this State and was aged 28 years.

About two years ago the germs of consumption fastened themselves upon him and it became evident to his physicians that there was no hope for him. The patient was isolated in a cottage in the southern limits of town, where for months he was nursed by his mother and everything possible was done for his comfort.

The deceased leaves a mother and two sisters all of whom are residents of this city. He is also survived by a brother residing elsewhere.

The funeral took place Tuesday, the remains being interred in Mountain Cemetery.

An Appreciative Official

City Marshal James H. Albertson, who was re-elected for the sixth time at last Monday's election, publishes elsewhere in these columns a card thanking his many friends for their loyal support. "Uncle Jim," as he is familiarly called, has now been the Marshal and Tax Collector of this city for nearly twelve years, and next Monday enters upon another two years term.

One of the reasons for the large majority Marshal Albertson receives at each recurring election is the fact that since entering upon the duties of the office with which he has been honored by his fellow citizens there has never been but one delinquent tax list on record in this city and that was during his first year in office. From that day to this he has collected every cent due the city on property taxes and licenses, which is a record that has never been made by any other city Tax Collector in the State.

As a peace officer Marshal Albertson has not made a reputation equal to that of similar officials in some of the other interior towns. Sonoma has been too moral, orderly and peaceable for that.

Parente Bros. Making Extensive Improvements.

The Parente Bros. are making many costly improvements in and around their resort at Verano in anticipation of a big rush to this valley the present season. Already one hundred guests have been turned away owing to the lack of accomodations. By May 1st, however, they will be fixed to accomodate all comers.

A large number of fine bedrooms with all modern improvements have been completed and are now ready for the furniture. A large dining room, restaurant and kitchen have also just been finished, where meals will be served either on the European or American plan.

Within a short distance of the main building a house has been built, which will be occupied as a barber shop and tailoring establishment. The foundations for half a dozen cottages have also been laid and many other improvements are under way. Two fine automobiles have also been added to the resort. When thrown open for the guests next month this resort will be up-to-date and complete in every detail. These latest improvements represent an investment of a large sum of money, which the owners say last season's business fully justifies.

Father Leahy Preaches Farewell Sermon.

Rev. Father J. Leahy, for the past ten years pastor of St. Francis Church in this city, preached a farewell sermon before a large congregation last Sunday. Father Leahy who is to be the administrator of St. Mary's Church in Stockton, San Joaquin County, left for that city yesterday.

Since assuming the pastorate of St. Francis Church here, Father Leahy has endeared himself to the members in his parish and won the respect and esteem of all classes in this community regardless of religious belief. Courtly and affable in manner, scholarly and intellectually far above the average he is a pastor of whom any community might be proud. By his leave taking St. Francis parish loses a highly educated and beloved pastor and the community at large a courtly gentleman and valuable citizen.

More Improvements.

The concrete foundation for a two-story brick building on Broadway is being laid for the owner, Henry Castagnasso. The building, which will be 42x56, will be used for two stores on the ground floor while the upper portion will be for offices. Tenants for the lower portion of the building, which will have a fine frontage of iron and glass, one of which will be used as a dry goods store, have already been secured. The contractor is Ralph Murphy, who expects to have the building completed by June 1st.

Free Open Air Concert.

The Sonoma Valley Band will give a free open air concert in the Plaza tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon between two and four o'clock.

Sewer Bonds Defeated at Healdsburg

The proposition to bond Healdsburg for $40,000 for a sewer system was defeated at Monday's election by a vote of 177 for and 238 against. Evidently Healdsburg is not a progressive town. Its people are now on record as being against preserving the health of that town by providing a system of sewers for its inhabitants. That being the case, it appears to us that if one has any regard for his health it is a good town to keep away from. Healdsburg has cast aside a golden opportunity and must now "go way back and sit down."

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. Speakeer of Glen Ellen was quite ill this week and Mrs. Kate Buchan of this city spent two days there nursing the little one, which is now much improved.

RESULT OF CITY ELECTION MONDAY

CUMMINGS, WAGNON AND DAL POGETTO ELECTED TRUSTEES

Albertson Re-elected Marshal Gottenberg for City Clerk and Jesse Burris for Treasurer.

The election held here Monday was a quiet one and devoid of excitement and owing, in a great measure, to the forthcoming sewer bond election was almost free from acrimonious feelings.

The result had no significance on the sewer question at all, as all the candidates were on record as being in favor of bonding the town for the proposed septic tank system and upon which our people seem to be united.

As predicted in these columns M. E. Cummings, nominee for City Trustee, led all the other candidates by a wide gap and passed under the wire an easy winner with 173 votes, which was nearly fifty votes more than the next highest candidate for that office received. The vote for City Trustees was as follows:

Cummings	173
Wagnon	146
Dal Poggetto	94
Breitenbach	87
Bulotti	64
Perkins	43
Guyot	9

The contest for City Clerk between Hartley Gottenberg and L. Green was a close one and resulted in the election of the former by two majority as the following will show:

Gottenberg	101
Green	99

The triangular contest for City Marshal resulted in the selection of J. H. Albertson by a plurality of 47 as follows:

Albertson	120
Lopete	73
Goetzen	13

Jesse Burris, for Treasurer, had a walk-over as he was alone in all his glory and swiped nearly every vote in sight.

The incoming Board of City Trustees, it is understood, will take up the sewer proposition where the old Board left off, and let us hope carry it through to a speedy and successful conclusion.

Surprise Party at Trudgen Home

Eighteen or twenty of the girl and boy friends of Miss Beth Trudgen tendered her a surprise party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Trudgen, last Wednesday evening, the occasion being her sixteenth birthday.

Miss Trudgen was taken completely by surprise by her friends, as she had been out of town visiting all day. Upon her arrival home she found the parlor crowded with young folks. Feasting, games, music and dancing followed and was kept up until a late hour.

The young hostess was the recipient of numerous and handsome presents. Those present were: Misses Gertrude Breitenbach, Myrle Thomas, Georgie Andrews, Nancy Bates, Ramona Granice, Jennie Poulson, Lenora Spencer, Alice Trudgen, Isabel Trudgen and Beth Trudgen. Messrs. Spencer Harris, George Chase, Lloyd Hotz, George Millerick, Hamil Wagnon, Louie Brown, Raymond Solomonsen, Raymond Castex, Joe McMullen, Will Curtis, Lenoard Thomas and Wesley Trudgen.

Splendid Rain

The rain which fell throughout the valley Sunday and Monday brought veritable showers of gold to our farmers and dairymen. The precipitation likewise laid the dust on all the public thoroughfares much to the delight of automobilists and the traveling public in general. So far the season gives promise of being one of the most prosperous known in this valley for many years.

Seventh Day Adventists Will Sell Sonoma Property

The California Conference Association of Seventh Day Adventists has applied to the Superior Court of this county for permission to dispose of its property near Buena Vista station one mile east of town. The property is embraced in two parcels of land of 15.4 acres and 31 acres respectively. The land was purchased several years ago and was to be part of the big Buena Vista rancho for which they were negotiating but the sale fell through. The Adventists then abandoned its intention of locating a colony in this valley and purchased a site elsewhere. The land which it now seeks to sell is the site of the Cripples Home.

Mrs. Louise Pehrson Secures Final Decree of Divorce.

A final decree of divorce was granted in Judge Seawell's department of the Superior Court Tuesday to Mrs. Louise Pehrson from her husband Peter Pehrson. The parties to the divorce proceedings lived for a number of years on the McIntosh place east of town, where the husband acted as Superintendent. About two years ago the Pehrsons were apparently living in happy domestic bliss and it was a surprise to the friends of the couple when divorce proceedings were instituted by the wife. Robt. Poppe and Frank Sprague were the attorneys for Mrs. Pehrson.

Petition that Father Leahy Remain Here.

A petition bearing the signatures of a large number of Rev. Father Leahy's parishoners, requesting that the popular pastor be allowed to remain here, was presented to Archbishop Riordan last Thursday. The petition was handed to the Archbishop by Mr. M. E. Cummings, who went to San Francisco on Thursday morning expressly for that purpose. We understand, however, that the Archbishop denied the petition on the grounds that Father Leahy would be deprived of a higher and more important position if he cancelled his appointment as administrator of the Catholic Church at Stockton.

The news was received with great disappointment here, as it was thought the petition would surely be granted.

Base Ball Game Sunday.

The base ball game that was to have been played last Sunday was postponed on account of rain, but will take place to-morrow (Sunday) morning in El Verano, weather permitting. The Sonoma boys will probably line up as they did in the first game. Jansen will pitch for Sonoma and Carl Weaver for El Verano. Ken Weaver will umpire. The game begins at 10 o'clock sharp. Following is the line-up:

Sonoma	Position	El Verano
A. Jansen	Pitcher	C. Weaver
R. Poppe	Catcher	T. Walsh
E. Goepfert	First base	G. Block
F. Reed	Second base	G. Weaver
P. Prazzo	Third base	E. Dutil
B. Greeley	Short stop	W. Block
H. Lutgens	Left field	L. Riser
C. Taylor	Center field	W. Spindler
Volquardsen	Right field	B. Weaver
	Substitute	R. La Torres

To the Voters of Sonoma.

I take this method of thanking my friends for the large vote given me for City Marshal at the election held last Monday. I assure the voters of Sonoma I appreciate the fine majority accorded me and promise them to do my duty as their City Marshal for another two years conscientiously and to the best of my ability.

New Board of City Trustee to Organize.

The new Board of City Trustees meet in the City Hall next Monday evening and will organize by electing its presiding officer, who in turn will name the plaza, street, water and the other committees who will serve under him.

Just which member of the Board will be chosen its presiding officer is not known, but it will probably take several ballots to decide the matter, as more than one of the Trustees has been mentioned. It is certain, however, that the honor will go to either Trustees Cummings, Wagnon or McDonell, all of whom, as well as Messrs. Quartaroli and Dal Poggetto are fierce sewer advocates.

New Ruler of Santa Rosa Elks.

Jos. P. Berry, the attorney of Santa Rosa, and son-in-law of Frank Koenig of the Union Hotel of this city, has been elected Exalted Ruler of Santa Rosa Lodge, No. 646, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Dislocated Finger.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a costitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Resolution

Determining that the Public Interest and the Public Necessity Demand a Certain Municipal Improvement in and for the City of Sonoma, the Cost of Which will be too Great to be Paid out of the Ordinary Annual Income and Revenue of said City.

Resolved by the Board of Trustees of the City of Sonoma that:

Section 1. Whereas, The public interest and the public necessity demand a certain public municipal improvement in and for the City of Sonoma, to-wit: a complete sewer system and system of sewers, including all lands, rights of way, leases, structures, reservoirs, wells, tanks, all materials for such sewer system and system of sewers, including sewer pipe with the necessary Y, T and other branches, reducers, cast iron pipe for creek crossings, cement, sand, lumber, man holes complete with cast iron covers, lamp holes complete with cast iron covers, flush tanks complete with syphons and cast iron covers, brick and concrete water pipes and fittings, and machinery for water for flushing sewers, septic tanks and buildings, settling tanks, filter beds and ditches, drain tiles and other materials necessary for the treatment and disposal of sewage, which public interest appears and which necessity arises from the fact that the City of Sonoma is now without any system or plan whatever for the effective or any disposal of sewage or waste from the houses and streets of said city; that the comfort convenience and health of the inhabitants of the City of Sonoma imperatively require that an effective and modern up-to-date sewer system and system of sewers for the disposal of sewage and waste be established for said city; that it is imperative; also, for the health of the inhabitants of said city that a sewer system and system of sewers be established into which to drain the water courses running through the City of Sonoma, and the refuse waters and substances flowing into such water courses from laundries, the brewery and other manufacturing establishments, and to prevent the pollution and contamination of such water courses thereby, and to prevent sickness and epidemics liable to arise therefrom.

Section 2. And, Whereas, the Board of Trustees of the City of Sonoma, being the legislative branch of said city, contemplate the acquisition, construction and completion of such sewer system and system of sewers, with everything pertaining thereto as herein above set forth, for said city and for municipal uses.

Section 3. And Whereas, the said Board of Trustees has had plans and estimates of the cost of said municipal improvement made by a competent civil and sanitary engineer, he being one who has had successful experience in such work, which plans and estimates have been reported to said Board and examined and approved by it.

And Whereas, according to said plan and estimates, the estimated cost of said proposed public municipal improvement is the sum of Twenty Thousand ($20,000.00) Dollars, in gold coin of the United States; that is to say, according thereto, the estimated cost of the acquisition, construction and completion by said city of said sewer system and system of sewers for municipal uses is the sum of Twenty Thousand ($20,000.00) Dollars.

And Whereas, this Board has approved and adopted said plans and estimates, and hereby estimates the cost of said proposed public municipal improvement at, and determines the cost thereof to be, the said amount lastly set forth as aforesaid.

And Whereas, said amount is the estimated cost of said municipal improvement.

Section 4. And Whereas, said amount, to-wit: Twenty Thousand ($20,000.00) Dollars, the cost of the acquisition, construction and completion of said sewer system and system of sewers, for municipal uses, is an amount too great to be paid out of the ordinary annual income and revenue of said city.

Section 5. Now, therefore, the Board of Trustees of said City of Sonoma, being the legislative branch of said municipality, does hereby and by this resolution determine that the public interest and public necessity demand such public improvement in and for said City of Sonoma, to-wit: a complete sewer system and system of sewers, with everything pertaining thereto as herein above set forth. And said Board does hereby further determine that the cost of said municipal improvement will be too great to be paid out of the annual income and revenue of said city. And the said Board does hereby further determine that all necessaay and proper proceedings be and the same shall be taken and had as provided by the laws of the State of California, for the purpose and to the end of having and making such public municipal improvement.

The above and foregoing resolution was passed and adopted at a regular meeting of the Board of Trustees of the City of Sonoma, held on Wednesday, the sixth day of April, 1910, by the following vote, viz:

Four ayes, and in favor of the adoption of the resolution: Trustees Breitenbach, McDonell, Quartaroli and Wagnon.

No noes, and against the adoption of said resolution, none.

Absent, Trustee Bates.

GEO. BREITENBACH,
President of the Board of Trustees of the City of Sonoma.

Attest:
JOSEPH B. SMALL,
(Seal) Clerk of the City of Sonoma.

Hard to Kill.

The Hawaiian Islands have always been famed for their freedom from snakes. People and animals could wander with impunity through valleys and over hills and mountains. An importation arrived on the steamship Alameda from California that might have put an end to such delightful serenity. This was the arrival of three flimsy boxes containing fourteen large living snakes, five of them rattlers. Under a rule such animals arriving in the territory of Hawaii are ordered to be immediately destroyed or deported.

"In the destruction of these snakes," says the narrator, "we had a surprising experience. I placed the boxes in one of our fumigating chambers and applied a charge of double density of hydrocyanic acid gas. The snakes were still alive at the end of fifteen minutes, whereas if they had been warm blooded animals they would have succumbed in a less number of seconds. They were again shut up, and a quadruple charge of the same deadly gas was administered. At the end of one hour and a half the fumigator was opened, and several of the snakes still showed signs of life. We then immersed them in 95 per cent alcohol. That soon put an end to their venomous existence."—Youth's Companion.

Well Placed Generosity.

In 1835 Liszt went on a tour in the French provinces. He arrived at the little town of L. to give a concert, as announced. But the inhabitants appeared to take but little interest in musical matters, for when the musician appeared on the platform he found himself face to face with an audience numbering exactly seven persons. Liszt stepped very calmly to the front, and, bowing respectfully to the array of empty benches, he delivered himself as follows:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I feel extremely flattered by your presence here this evening, but this room is not at all suitable; the air is literally stifling. Will you be good enough to accompany me to my hotel, where I will have the piano conveyed? We shall be quite comfortable there, and I will go through the whole of my program."

The offer was unanimously accepted, and Liszt treated his guests not only to a splendid concert, but an excellent supper into the bargain. Next day when the illustrious virtuoso appeared to give his second concert the hall was not large enough to contain the crowd which claimed admittance.

The Diagnosis.

The disastrous results of interference by relatives in the course of courtships was well exemplified in the case of a young Baltimore couple not long ago. They had been engaged for some time when it became generally known that the affair was at an end.

"What was the trouble, Jack?" an intimate friend asked the youth, who, by the way, is a recent medical graduate.

"Well, as it was nothing relating to Nan personally, I don't know why I shouldn't tell you," he replied, with a sigh.

"I suppose it was some outside influence—you seemed to fairly dote on her," the friend commented.

"I did," the dejected lover replied. "She is the sweetest little girl in the world, but terribly fond of her relatives. Her old maid aunt from Kansas came along the other day and announced that she was going to live with us after we were married, and—well she proved an antidote."—Detroit Free Press.

The Chinese Way.

In its wars with England and France in 1859-60 China was easily conquered and forced to a humiliating peace. The Pekin Gazette, the official organ of the government, however, reported the following concerning that treaty of peace:

"As the western barbarians have admitted their wrongs and humbly solicited for peace, the emperor in his infinite goodness has granted their prayer and, moreover, has made them a present of a large sum of money (indemnity of war) to enable them to begin an honest life, so that they may not again be driven to murder and rapine."

A Joker Among Birds.

The bluejay is a practical joker. It is his habit to conceal himself in a mass of leaves near the spot where small birds are accustomed to gather and when they are enjoying themselves in their own fashion to suddenly frighten them almost to death by screaming out like a hawk. Of course they scatter in every direction, and when they do so the mischievous rascal gives vent to a cackle that sounds very much like a laugh.

The Real Test.

"My husband is the kindest man—lets baby break his watch or pull his mustache and never scolds it at all."

"But did the baby ever get hold of one of his pipes? That's the real test."—Buffalo Express.

The Work of Time.

"And to think," sighed the man who was trying to find a belt which was long enough to be buckled around him, "that the boys at school used to call me Skinny!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

He Gave It.

Poison of the Centiped.

The centiped is popularly supposed to carry a sting on each foot, but I have several times handled one after its head was removed without the claws producing any result. It is the first pair of claws only that are venomous, being hollow and provided with poison bags like a snake's fang. The largest I ever saw was eleven inches in length, a grewsome creature. A bite from one of this size would most likely have been fatal to a man in weak health. The tarantula, though his powers of offense are nothing like those of the scorpion or centiped, is, however, a more unpopular character than either. The horror of these large spiders entertained by many people is curious and unaccountable. I have seen Australian bushmen, who in everyday life scarcely seemed to understand danger, turn white as a sheet at the sight of a small "triantelope," as they called it.—Chambers' Journal.

Practice and Preaching.

When the late Bishop Hare was presiding over a Methodist Episcopal church in New York city a large reception was given in his honor to which a brother of his, a lawyer, who closely resembled the bishop, was invited.

During the evening a member of the conference who had never met the bishop's brother approached him and, shaking him warmly by the hand, said:

"Good evening, Bishop Hare. I greatly enjoyed the sermon you gave us today. It is just what this church needs."

"You are mistaken in the person," said the brother, smiling, as he pointed to the bishop on the opposite side of the room, "that is the man who preaches. I practice."

A Long Job.

"Where have you been for so long?" asked the head man of the menagerie.

"Been watching one of the animals clear his throat, sir," replied the attendant.

"But does it take half an hour for an animal to clear its throat?"

"Yes, sir; it was the giraffe, sir."—Yonkers Statesman.
